Recent Fires Hit Too Close to Home; Prevention, Home Safety Urged

Three recent emergencies have sparked renewed emphasis on fire prevention and home safety public information efforts. Firefighters such as Bart Burns, pictured above, pepper ambulance tours during civic events with safety facts residents take home.

Three recent emergencies have prompted Village safety officials to issue a set of guidelines to prevent and survive fires and otherwise keep homes disaster free. Fire destroyed an industrial building in December and a residence in January. And in early February a small child in a nearby community died after becoming entangled in a window-blind cord.

Numerous hazards exist around the home, often inviting injury or even worse for inquisitive, fast-moving small children. Here is a checklist to guide you in "child-proofing" your home:

- Put locks and latches on cabinet doors. They are the first line of defense against injuries.
- Keep dangerous objects and toxic substances out of reach in a locked storage place.
- Dispose of medications, polishes, and paints you don't need.
- Store tools in locked cabinets or off the premises.
- Replace poisonous cleansers and lawn products with nontoxic substitutes whenever possible. (The Solid Waste Agency of Northern Cook County – SWANCC – can provide suggestions for safer alternatives to toilet-bowl cleansers, pesticides, and other cleaning and gardening supplies.)
- SWANCC can provide instructions on disposing of toxic substances.

Disastrous fires can occur anywhere proper precautions are not taken. Preparedness is the key. The Wheeling Fire Department recommends implementing the following procedures to prevent and survive fire.

Smoke Detectors – For less than the cost of a fast-food meal for a family of four, several battery-operated smoke detectors can be installed in the home. With smoke detectors providing early detection, the chance for safely exiting the home during a fire is increased by more than 80%. To remember when the battery in the smoke detector was last changed replace it every year on a special day (e.g., birthday or a holiday). After 10 years, replace the smoke detector with a new one.

Small Appliances – When not in use, small appliances (ex. coffee makers, toasters, curling irons, etc.) should be unplugged from the electrical outlet. Small appliances can accidentally be left on and eventually cause fires. Those with timers should be used only when someone is home. Power outages or timer failure can cause the appliance to turn on accidentally and lead to overheating.

Exits – Plan for two ways out of a room and building. Know what to do if your primary exit is blocked. Develop a home emergency escape plan, discuss it with your family, and practice it every year. Exits should be clear of all obstructions and nearby combustible materials. Village Code prohibits door locks that require the use of a key from inside. During an emergency, people can forget where the key is located and become trapped in their home.

House Numbers – Village Code requires that every building be equipped with a visible address so emergency personnel can locate your home. Numbers are to be a minimum of four inches high and visible from the street. Their color should contrast with the background and, if possible, be located in an area illuminated by an outside light. Decorative numbers are prohibited, since they can be very difficult to distinguish in the dark.

Teach everyone when to call 9-1-1 – The emergency 9-1-1 number is intended only for emergency situations (fire, police or medical emergency). Any fire, regardless of size, is an emergency situation. If possible, stay

Capital Improvement Plan Sets Village Construction Priorities

The Wheeling Public Works Department has developed a five-year capital-improvement plan to set priorities and establish preliminary budget needs. Projects span broad areas of Village maintenance, such as roads and bridges, street improvement, water delivery, building maintenance and sewers.

Heading the list of planned projects is the Buffalo Creek/Wheeling Ditch Diversion Channel. Ground breaking for the project is scheduled for March 9 (see adjacent story).

New PW Facility

The plan also anticipates that preliminary design and conceptual layout will begin this year for a new Public Works Facility at 77 W. Hintz Rd. Construction is currently planned for 2003-2004.

Add Wooden Fences

As recommended by the Wheeling Plan Commission, uniform wooden fences, similar to those on Rte. 83 between Dundee and Hintz Rds., are targeted for design this year. It is anticipated construction will start in 2002.

One fence will run along the north side of Dundee Rd. just west of the Elmhurst-Dundee intersection to Cedar Dr. Additional fencing will be installed along portions of Rte. 83 and McHenry Rd.

Overhaul Wheeling Road

Wheeling Rd. is slated for a major overhaul between Hintz and Dundee Rds. Design will begin this year and extend into 2002. The projected start of construction is 2003.

Numerous, ongoing projects will continue, including water-system improvements and upgrading, construction of new sidewalks, and the 10-year streetlight improvement program throughout the Village.

Diversion Channel Construction to Begin

The Village of Wheeling and the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) will break ground on the Buffalo Creek/Wheeling Ditch Diversion Channel on March 9.

The ceremony will mark the culmination of extensive planning for the project, which is designed as a supplemental discharge route to the Wheeling drainage ditch. The Channel is designed to handle excessive water volume from extraordinary storms — the once in a decade to once in a century sized storms.

The $2.4 million dollar project is being funded largely by NRCS. Currently targeted for completion this fall, the 7,200-foot channel will be 70 feet wide at its widest. It will be capable of handling a water flow of 800 cubic feet per minute.

The channel will be of earthen construction, with no concrete along the route except for culverts passing beneath roadbeds. It will start at the Wheeling drainage ditch north of Dundee Rd. and east of the railroad and meander northeast before spilling into the Des Plaines River.

Some of the soil excavated from the channel will be used to build up its sidewalls. The remainder will be sold or disposed of.

on the telephone with the emergency dispatcher until you're instructed to hang up. In cases requiring emergency medical assistance, the dispatcher can provide important lifesaving information, such as how to apply CPR, perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, etc.

Learn Basic First Aid & CPR - Maintaining an open airway and cardiac function, and controlling serious bleeding before paramedics arrive greatly increases survival chances of an injured person or heart attack victim. The Wheeling Fire Department and the Wheeling Park District regularly teach CPR classes.

Do You Need a Permit?

Before you build or remodel existing structures within the Village, it is likely you will need to obtain a permit. Everything from new buildings to additions require a permit issued by the appropriate Village department.

Protect Homeowners' Interests

"We are involved from the plan review through the final inspection on site to make sure that building and remodeling projects comply with current life-safety building codes," says Mike Klitzke, Community Development Director.

Most Village permits are issued by the Community Development Department, although the Public Works Department is responsible for engineering-related permits. The forms are available on the Village Web site (vi.wheeling.il.us | Reference Desk | Forms and Permits) and from the issuing departments.

Permits issued by the Community Development Department include those posted in the chart below.

Get a Permit Before Starting Home Improvements:

House addition or remodeling	Lawn sprinkler system
Shed	Any electrical or plumbing work
Garage	Roofing
Central air conditioning	Siding
Wood deck	Window or door replacement if opening size will change
Gazebo	Sewer repair
Swimming pool/spa/hot tub	Concrete stoop replacement if change in size/location
Fence/dog run	Water heater installation

Wheeling faced a growth spurt beginning in the mid-1950s. New arrivals poured into town looking for housing. The Meadowbrook and Dunhurst subdivisions were built, and the population doubled in one year.

Marvin "Syke" Horcher became police chief in 1955, just before the population began to explode. Things were less formal than they are now. "You knew everyone and everyone knew you," Horcher remembers.

When young families began moving into the newly constructed housing, they placed unexpected pressure on the infrastructure. The Police Department had a staff of just eight at the time, and officers found themselves delivering babies. "In one case," says Horcher, "we never got out of the house because there was a snowstorm."

First TIF District

The need for increased Village services led to a search for ways to pay for them. That, coupled with a desire to attract business and redevelop Milwaukee Ave., gave rise to Wheeling's first tax-increment finance (TIF) district.

The Crossroads Tax Increment Finance District, comprising 121 acres, was intended to attract private investment for vacant and underutilized properties, improve the infrastructure and combat blight. (Recently the Board of Trustees approved a new TIF district on south Milwaukee Ave.)

New businesses attracted to the TIF District tend to be restaurants and offices taking advantage of the existing retail businesses, traffic flow and proximity to the large industrial parks of Palwaukee Business Center and Capital Commerce Center, with their associated employee bases.

As TIF-related questions were resolved, the Village identified a new concern: "business flight." Businesses were growing, but some were getting restless. To retain industrial businesses the Village partnered with Cook County to take advantage of 6-B tax classification, which helps provide property-tax relief.

But the specter of business flight hasn't disappeared. Despite the Village's numerous business and industrial parks, that county lure to the north remains a tempting lure. Village President Greg Klatecki says, "Our biggest concern is losing industries to collar counties. We are very sound and provide strong attractions to business. Those tax incentives are important to maintaining our business and industrial base."

Unemployment Rates Low

The industrial base has helped hold unemployment to rates that, over a 12-year period, have remained significantly lower than that of the Chicago metropolitan area, the state and the nation. In 1999, just 3.3 percent of the population was unemployed, compared with 4.5-4.7 percent elsewhere.

More than 20,000 people work in a broad range of industries. Industrial machining and equipment, food, publishing and printing, rubber and plastics, fabricated metals, and electronic machinery and instruments are a cross section of products manufactured in Wheeling for use elsewhere.

The Changing Face of Wheeling

This is the second in a three-part series.

Village's "gateway intersection" – Milwaukee Ave. and Dundee Rd. The corners are targeted for additional development as Millennium Plaza, a parklike focal point.

The town's famed Restaurant Row is home to Le Francais' legendary five-star menu. Bob Chinn's Crabhouse is one of the largest grossing independent restaurants in the country. Up and down "The Row" are Crawdaddy Bayou, Buca di Beppo, Tuscany, Don Roth's and others. On the drawing board is a Benihana of Tokyo restaurant. And The Ram Brewery and Pub, currently under construction at the north end of Milwaukee Ave., is scheduled to open by late winter.

It won't be the first brewery to call Wheeling home. The Periolat Brewery, built on the west bank of the Des Plaines River in 1850, remained a Wheeling landmark for 60 years. It was a slowly fading relic when the Village was officially formed in 1894. The brewery fell to wrecking crews in 1909.

Another landmark, the Union Hotel, built in 1856 and reconstructed following a fire in 1925, survived in various incarnations. It was razed in 1996 to make way for the Union Commons townhouses.

Next issue: Wheeling today.

Here Comes Spring Cleanup

With the seemingly reluctant passing of winter comes the anticipation of spring, when the earth reawakens and Village residents start the annual cleanup. Aiding in that effort is the resumption of yard-waste pickup on March 19.

Wheel Sets Available

The Public Works Department has taken delivery on 100 wheel sets that can be attached to Village-provided recycling bins for easier handling. The wheel sets are available on a first-come basis and cost $8 each.

Anyone interested in recycling but not otherwise eligible for curbside pickup can deposit recyclable materials in the large containers behind the main fire station on Dundee Rd. Newspapers, magazines, cans, bottles and various types of plastic, such as milk jugs, are accepted. The recycling point is available around the clock.

Celebrate Earth Day

On March 20, which is the beginning of the spring equinox, much of the world will commemorate the 31st anniversary of Earth Day in many countries. The event will be marked with a broad range of activities.

Arbor Day will be saluted this year on April 27 to encourage tree planting and tree care. In part due to Arbor Day efforts, the Village of Wheeling has sponsored Arbor Day ceremonies at the schools for a number of years. The Village once again has been named as a Tree City USA.

Wholesalers, retailers, construction contractors, financial services and other non-manufacturing industries also operate in Wheeling. Many are located within a network of industrial and commercial complexes scattered throughout the Village, presenting a residential "face" along major thoroughfares and a core of light and heavy industry.

Wheeling's geographical appearance isn't the only thing changing. The human face also has undergone a lift, with a "third wave" of newcomers from Eastern Europe. They were followed by arrivals from India, Thailand and Latin America, among many others.

Twenty-four languages are represented at Wheeling High School, and still more nationalities. In recognition of its growing cultural diversity, the Village now produces an annual multicultural festival, "Pageant of Nations," scheduled for May 6, 2001.

Community Grows Up

The little farm community is grown up now. One resident recently observed that "Wheeling is not just a suburb anymore; it's a community in its own right."

New stores, restaurants and condominiums now populate the northwest corner of the

'Pageant of Nations' to Celebrate Diversity

Wheeling's second annual "Pageant of Nations" multicultural festival is scheduled to take place on May 6. The day-long festival will feature entertainers representing various cultures, crafts from around the world, exhibits and ethnic cuisines.

Entertainers presently scheduled include a Hindu magician, a Mexican dance troupe, and a South American variety band. Plans are being finalized for a German band and a West African drum group. Additional entertainers will be announced later.

In addition to vendors of crafts from various traditions, the festival will feature demonstrations of arts and crafts. A local community group, "Hands Around the World," will reprise its 2000 exhibit offering a "tour" of half a dozen nations and hands-on craft-making for the kids.

Sponsored by the Wheeling Human Rights Commission, the event is intended to celebrate the diversity of more than 24 languages and nationalities represented in the Village.

"The multicultural festival is a way for residents to learn about the heritage, music, food and culture of many neighbors," said William Maloney, who chairs the Human Rights Commission. "It's a way to bring people together and promote cultural understanding."

The Village will also produce a 5K run the morning of the festival. Between 500 and 1000 runners are expected to take part.

Economic Development Sponsors Open House

In its quest to draw to the Village successful businesses that will enhance the lives of residents, the Economic Development Commission cosponsored an industrial property open house in January. The event gave Commission members a chance to meet with interested business prospects and property brokers, distribute literature, answer questions and tour facilities. Staff members are following up on leads generated from the event.

The Senior Citizens Commission has completed a comprehensive database of Pavilion Center members with information on more than 600 seniors who participate in center activities. This database will help the Village identify and provide important services to better serve the community's elderly population.

Commission members are also working with Village staff to identify other area seniors who may need assistance.

Also on the docket for 2001: developing a senior handbook of information and contact numbers for services offered by area care providers, local, state and federal assistance programs. Compiling this information in one booklet will help seniors easily find answers to questions they may have about services available to them.
